

ROOSEVELT TO START FOR THE CHICAGO CONVENTION TONIGHT IN ATTEMPT TO STAMPEDE IT

DECIDES TO MAKE PERSONAL
FIGHT TO GAIN NOMINATION FOR PRESIDENT FROM HIS OLD FRIEND WILLIAM
H. TAFT.

ARRIVAL IS AWAITED

Meanwhile Politicians Arrive By Scores and General Topics Are Discussed By The Party
Leaders on Expediency.

New York, June 14.—Theodore Roosevelt announced shortly after noon today that he had decided to go to Chicago to personally lead his fight for the nomination. He will leave at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon via the New York Central railway.

Colonel Roosevelt said he was going to Chicago in response to the unanimous request of the Roosevelt delegates. He will be accompanied only by Roger H. Post, former governor of Porto Rico.

"My decision to go to Chicago is the result of what you have heard from Chicago today," was asked of Colonel Roosevelt.

"I have heard a good deal. All I have to say in explanation of the situation is this: Several delegates have been in to see me here today and I have had countless telegrams. The unanimous demand of the delegates, who have already reached Chicago, is that I go.

"They say that the action in the Indiana and Kentucky cases of the national committee is such as to make it absolutely clear as to whether the people have the right to make their own nomination or whether a small number of votes of professional politicians can be permitted to steal the right from them.

"The Roosevelt delegates desire that I go to Chicago not as a candidate, but because for the time being I stand as representing the principles for which the voters of the republic have overwhelmingly decided in the primaries in the various states."

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, June 14.—Delegates to the national republican convention in anticipation of the coming of Colonel Roosevelt to Chicago in what promises to be a history making episode in American politics went back to the first nomination of Abraham Lincoln in 1860, in efforts to find a parallel for the fight being waged here.

With the committee kept at high pitch between conferences and mass meetings in which leaders attacked the action of the national committee with bitterness, it was pointed out to the delegates that the party as the theory of what may be expected in Chicago next week.

A Possible Deadlock.
Taft leaders returned the action of the national committee in sending Roosevelt delegates in Missouri as indicative of its fairness. The Roosevelt managers today declared that if delegates were seated in favor of President Taft he will lack 14 votes of the number necessary to the required vote. These figures compiled at both the Taft headquarters and Roosevelt camp brought the situation down to a point where discussion of a deadlock and a possible "dark horse" loomed large.

What Is Result.
Colonel Roosevelt's leaders declared that as the present situation stands the Taft force actually counts less than ten votes in their favor. Others insisted that the developments of yesterday in sending Roosevelt delegates from Missouri left the president eleven short of a bare majority roll call.

La Follette Force Strategic.
The fight for the nomination of the thirty-six delegates from Wisconsin and North Dakota became intense as the result of the lightning of the party lines. The La Follette delegation loomed larger than ever as the strategic force and in calculation of the managers of the other camps it seemed to be a close second to the southern and uncommitted votes in the convention. It was pointed out that if President Taft is not in absolute control of the convention from start to finish La Follette will hold the balance of power.

May Be McGovern.
The question of chairman among leaders was further announced this morning as a possible balance. Roosevelt leaders say that they expect the aid of the La Follette delegation in the nomination to defeat United States Senator Root for temporary chairman. To this and the Roosevelt forces have suggested that they would be willing to support any candidate for the temporary chairmanship that the La Follette men might choose.

To Avoid Combination.
Walter L. Howe, Senator La Follette's campaign manager today, however, repeated his assertion to the effect that the La Follette delegation would positively avoid all combinations of any character with any other candidate.

Barnes Figures.
William Barnes, Jr., of New York in calculations made personally announced that President Taft would have 272 votes on the temporary roll call at the convention. If his claim is found to be correct when the national committee completes its hearing of the contests tomorrow the president would have a majority on the table of exactly seventy votes over the candidates in opposition.

Where Taft Will Fall.
When the situation of the possible ruling in regard to the winning of Taft delegates to the Roosevelt side was discussed, the Taft leaders insisted that even heroic efforts to that end would be futile in the case of the president's strength on paper. They pointed out that from their figures he would have 458 and that it would only be necessary to get his 35 southern delegates in order to get control of the convention and out of the hands of Colonel Roosevelt.

Concede Point.
Many of the Roosevelt leaders conceded the impossibility of the nomination of Colonel Roosevelt on the first ballot, but at the same time say that President Taft cannot muster enough votes to gain control of the committee on credentials. Here is the point where they claim the Taft ship will go on the rocks. The credential committee is admitted by many, would be similar to the national committee.

May Come West.
New York, June 14.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt left Oyster Bay for New York today, he planned to make several early calls arriving at his offices at 11:00 or 11:30 and it is said it might be decided that he would go to Chicago.

Iowa on Hand.
There was an influx of the Iowa delegates early today and marked activity around the headquarters of Senator Cummings. R. J. Flomming of Des Moines, who has been manager of many campaigns for Senator Cummings, joined Senator Kenyon for a conference.

Are For Root.
W. G. Daws and Luther A. Brown of Cedar Rapids, the latter a delegate-at-large from Iowa, and instructed for Taft, says the sixteen delegates are instructed and will stand by the President. These delegates are insisting that the Iowa delegation will vote for Senator Root as temporary chairman of the convention.

To Meet Monday.
This was the general understanding among the Cummins men. The Iowa delegates will hold a conference on Monday and select the various committees. It is understood that George P. Perkins of Sioux City, is slated for the committee on resolutions and John T. Adams of Dubuque will be on the committee and Senator Miles Pollock of Washington, whose seat is contested, arrived in Chicago today and joined the Roosevelt forces.

Expects Defeat.
"I suppose I will be flattened out by the steam roller," said the Senator in speaking of the Washington contest; "but I am going to go before the committee and present our case anyway."

Harry M. Daugherty, delegate from Ohio, today joined the Taft forces. It was reported that the Taft leaders had abandoned the idea of asking the convention to pass a resolution compelling delegates to vote according to their instructions unless released by the candidates. Many of the Taft people are opposed to this plan, which is said to have been suggested by General Powell Clayton, of Arkansas.

Is Second Choice.
Today, however, the Taft leaders in several states objected to the plan and insisted that Taft have the second choice of the first ballot. In this it was said that there are twenty from Illinois, six from Ohio, eight from Pennsylvania, and five from Maryland. The Taft leaders now insist that the candidate will be in as good a position to make an open fight for votes on the floor of the convention as the Roosevelt forces, provided there is no contest on the first ballot.

East on Hand.
S. G. Smith one of the West Virginia delegates who is strongly opposed to Taft said he would present the name of Richard Ballinger to the convention for the presidential nomination if President Taft is not nominated.

Colonel Edward Carrington of Baltimore, chairman of the Maryland delegation, said he was confident that Colonel Roosevelt would be nominated, or at least would be a serious contender. "But the question of when or where Colonel Roosevelt is nominated Maryland electors will vote for him in the electoral college. This is definitely settled."

Expects Surprises.
"The biggest surprise of the convention to the Taft forces will be the way the majority of the Southern delegates will go. I have sufficient dependable assurances that the Roosevelt strength with these Southern delegates has been vastly underestimated by the Taft managers."

Chaplain on Hand.
Rev. J. Wesley Hill of the Metropolitan Temple of New York, who will be one of the chaplains at the convention, reached Chicago today.

No Third Candidate.
Washington, June 14.—There will be no third candidate. All the information I get is that will be nominated on the first ballot with no vote to spare. That was President Taft's answer today to a visitor who asked his position in regard to the action of the national committee.

Dixon Announcement.
Senator Dixon after hurrying the coming of Colonel Roosevelt when asked what plans had been made for the conference with the Roosevelt leaders said "I have no plans for anything," said Senator Dixon.

To Handle Case.
When Mr. Roosevelt gets in close range he will dispose of a manager he won't need me. I will not mention any absolutely reliable source he said of another attempted bribery in the committee. I will not mention any name but so far he has been voting consistently with the "Stouffers" but I want to give him one more chance to reform."

When asked in regard to the platform the Roosevelt forces were contemplating, Senator Dixon said, "Many planks already have been rough hewn and are ready for polishing. Roosevelt himself has done some of the polishing."

Causes Stir.
The bustling routine of the headquarters of the committee at the Taft headquarters were interrupted by the announcement that Colonel Roosevelt would leave New York for Chicago tonight.

The usual reception to the arriving delegates was suspended. A number of them were left in the ante-room and the leaders of the committee gathered in Mr. McKinley's room from his quarters to the floor below. W. J. Barnes of New York, hurried in. Former Senator Woodruff of New York, dropped in. Representatives of Pennsylvania, who arrived today also came in and joined in the important conference as did also Secretary of Illinois, Senator Crane of the Taft leaders of the national committee said President Taft was notified by telegram of the activities in the camp.

Make Statement.
After the brief talk the impromptu gathering broke up. McKinley said: "We were just talking things over." Was Roosevelt's decision to come to Chicago discussed he was asked, "He has not told me about it," answered Mr. McKinley.

Give Figures.
After a careful review of the situation William J. Barnes, Jr., chairman of the New York central committee today asserted that the President would be nominated on the first ballot. "The president will have 555 delegates on the first ballot," he said. "Roosevelt will have only 468. I am confident these figures are accurate regarding the first nomination vote in the convention."

MITTEE IN CONFLICT.

TENNESSEE FOR TAFT

Six Delegates Turned Into President's List at Today's Sessions of the National Committee.

Chicago, Ill., June 14.—Nearly two hours of acrimonious argument at the forenoon session of the Republican National committee had as its result the transfer of two delegates from the single Oklahoma district, the third district contested, to the Taft column.

The issue hinges upon the regularity of the rival conventions at Tulsa the republican delegates contested. No roll call was taken, the decision being based on a viva voce vote. Following the action the committee quickly disposed of the first South Carolina district case in which the "regular" and contested delegations both were composed of Taft supporters. The contestants were seated.

There was a fist fight between Grant Victor, United States marshal for the eastern district of Oklahoma, a Taft supporter, and L. G. Dwyer and Patrick Dore of Westville, Okla., Roosevelt adherents, took place just outside the room of the republican national committee just after the hearing in the third Oklahoma contest. Scores of politicians and spectators who had gathered at the entrance of the committee room to await the result of the decision, took part in the conflict and aided detectives to separate the combatants.

In the committee room, previously, Frank J. Heney, after the argument in the third district had closed, had asked that Grant Victor, holding the proxy of T. A. Mirow of Montana, be excluded from voting on the case because of his personal interest in it.

The question was not put to a vote, Victor, however, retired with former Senator Charles Dix and other Taft supporters. Loud remarks were made in the Oklahoma case, Dwyer and Dore holding the claim of the Roosevelt faction. It was said, according to Dwyer, that Victor aimed a blow at him. Dore rushed into the thick of the fray and Victor put up a defensive.

By this time detectives on duty near the committee room took a hand in the combat together with Mr. Dix and several others. The men were allowed to leave the building without any arrests being made.

In the Tennessee districts the first second and tenth districts with two delegates each were given to the Taft column after much discussion. The ninth district in Tennessee is credited to President Taft.

The hearing of the Texas, Nevada and Washington contests were put over until tomorrow.

RATE COMMISSION TO HOLD A HEARING

Changes Needed in Shippers' Demurrage and Car Service Rates to Be Discussed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Wis., June 14.—Over one hundred shippers and jobbers of the state received a letter from the railroad commission today notifying them of a hearing to be held in the school board room of the city of Milwaukee, June 25, to discuss certain changes needed in the shippers' demurrage and car service rules. The changes suggested will relate mostly to the methods of computing the monthly debits and credits under the average agreement and to the classification of cars for the purpose of such computation. The original complaint in the matter was made by the Schlitz Brewing company. Slight changes in the rule were recently made by the shippers on agreement, but these changes are not entirely satisfactory.

"From letters that have been received from shippers since the changes were made," says the commission's letter today, "it now appears that these changes are not satisfactory to all and that certain shippers would like to have the former rules reinstated. This dissatisfaction with the changes in question appears to arise partly from the fact that they were put into effect on the interstate traffic only, and partly from differences of conditions under which the various shippers are carrying on their business."

WHEN YOU BECOME A "CONSCIOUS" READER OF ADVERTISING.

By J. R. HAMILTON
Former Advertising Manager of Wan-amaker's, Philadelphia.

When you learn to read your advertising as you read your news the cost of everything you wear or use is going to be lowered for you.

If you knew how much it takes to make an idea into your mind subconsciously you would be ashamed of your mind. It actually takes as long as two years sometimes to get you to think and say a certain word.

It's like teaching a baby to talk.

Every known trick of psychology is brought to bear on you. Advertisers have even been known to print their advertisement upside down, hoping, perhaps, that if you had to stand on your head to read it you "may remember what they say."

And what you so often refuse to receive with your will, the camera of your eye records in spite of you. So that 96 per cent of what you buy, you buy through advertising whether you know it or not.

And yet in the face of all this, the advertising method of selling things is twenty times cheaper than any other method known.

Think how much cheaper still it would be, if you would only read your advertising consciously instead of buying through it in spite of yourself.

The merchant who doesn't advertise hasn't even a chance with the one who does.

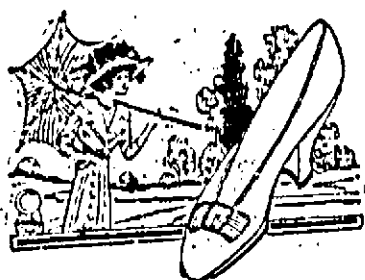

Your eye is taking photographs every time you turn these pages. You couldn't get away from these advertisements if you tried. Even the man who claims not to see them at all is recording them all the time. Every merchant who appears here is telling you his story every day whether you know it or not.

All we are trying to do is to make you conscious readers of advertising instead of subconscious readers. This is being done equally for your benefit and for ours.

Every time you look for the advertising in this paper instead of making it look for you, you bring down your cost of living, you increase the buying power of your money and you get a better quality for the price. This is true because the man who advertises are always the best merchants. They are the ones who last. The others flicker up for a little while and then go out. That's the proof.

On the other hand, every time we get a hundred more of our readers to turn each day with a conscious mind to the advertising news as well as to the general news, we make this a better medium for our advertisers. We give them more for their money because we give them your will.

And before we are through, every subscriber we have will be reading his advertising consciously day by day—never fear. For this is another psychological law. (Copyrighted)

EY GAS COMPANY RECEIPT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, June 14.—A red gas company receipt probably prevented a serious accident today on the Mendota beach crossing when a farmer's wagon loaded with hay stalled on the track. A university professor waved a red gas company receipt and the engineer of the St. Paul train stopped the train before it reached the crossing.

He Won't Work After Forty.

By W. C. Kenaga.

He's thirty-five now and in five more years he's through with work. He's on a salary, a moderate one at that, but he uses his eye and his brain. He's an inveterate reader of advertisements, and real estate advertisements are his hobby.

And that's why he won't work after forty.

For ten years he's been plying a piece of real estate here, another there, buying right and holding long enough to make a good profit—then letting go and buying another property.

He doesn't pay the full purchase price unless by so doing he can secure an additional discount which will more than equal the interest on the whole investment for two years. He reads advertisements, puts in a little of his own money, takes someone else who is content with 6 per cent until he can get the rest, and then down profits which are piling up so that he will not work after he is forty.

That's only one way to make advertisement reading pay—there are many others.

Let us all cheer up! That is, if we have been feeling blue because we couldn't throw a curve ball. A western inventor, R. W. Jones, of Lincoln, Neb., has invented a device by means of which anyone can throw a curve, and without trying. It is a small cup strapped on to the fingers by means of a rubber band.

It holds the ball and may be shifted to any position with respect to the fingers, thus regulating the size and kind of curves. The cup performs the office of the fingers in ordinary curve throwing.

INTEREST IS KEEN IN GAMES TOMORROW

Rivalry Will Be Shown in Baseball Contests Scheduled in Commercial League for Saturday.

Keen interest is being shown by the teams in the Commercial league in the games scheduled for tomorrow and some fast playing assured the fans. All of the teams are very much in earnest in their fight for the championship honors and the battle will grow more intense as the season progresses.

At Athletic park tomorrow afternoon the first game will be played by the Parker Pen and the Y. M. C. A. warriors. Both teams have percentages of 1.000 and the game will be expected to be a finish. The Northwestern railroad boys will meet the Hannon cabinet-makers in the second game. The latter team is also tied for first place in the league and the railway men will exert their best effort to dispose their opponents.

Gamos of no less interest are scheduled at the Park Association diamond. The Lewis Knitting team and the Janesville Machine company's line will contend in the first game and the Gazette and Recorder are the opponents in the second. Several changes in the lineup of the teams will be made with the view to strengthening the fielding and batting combinations.

The transportation facilities in both parks are especially arranged with the street railway company, offering decided advantages to the fans in the way of getting to the games. The Franklin street cars run direct to Athletic park and the Milton avenue cars are convenient to the Park Association grounds. It is expected that every team will have large delegations of loyal supporters on hand tomorrow afternoon.

stands. If he had treated the party half as well as he has been treated,
he would be supporting the administration today instead of opposing it.
With all his virtues, the colonel is a little inconsistent.

FLAG DAY.

This is "Flag day," and all over the land the stars and stripes are unfurled in recognition. It is well that a day has been set apart for such a celebration, because the flag is the emblem of patriotism, inspiring love of country and loyalty. The boys who followed the flag through the years of civil strife, never fail to reverence the sacred emblem, and so today they stand with heads uncovered, in its presence, an object lesson to the new generation, who do not always appreciate its full significance.
The flag means protection to the home and the individual, as well as to the nation. It floats today over an united people and is defended by every American citizen, worthy of the name, whether native-born or adopted.
Respect and love for the flag should be taught in every school in the land and every home should cherish it for all that it represents.

ALL SORTS OF RUMORS ARE AFOAT

Concerning the rumor of Colonel Roosevelt's campaign, and much speculation exists as to where the money is coming from. The latest is to the effect that his campaign to date has cost a million and a quarter, and that the bulk of this money came from a few millionaire contributors. Some of the Southern contest cases are not credible, and the colonel's managers are accused of spending money freely in Southern territory.

IF PRESIDENT TAFT IS NOMINATED

on the first ballot, as now seems probable, the work will be accomplished without the aid of the Wisconsin delegation. When the name of the state is reached, which is the last on the roll-call, what will the delegates do?
Will they vote for La Follette, or will they represent the republicanism of the state by supporting the nominee of the convention? This "last ditch" proposition may be all right under some circumstances, and all wrong
under other conditions.

THE REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE will not be accused of steam roller tactics in dealing with the contest cases yesterday. The committee had the power to seat the eight Taft delegates from Missouri, but recognizing the fact that they justly belonged to Roosevelt, they were placed in his column. The fight goes merrily on and promises to be at white heat when the convention is called next Tuesday.

Party warfare is lost to sight in the uneasily squibbled.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE IS SO MUCH OF

a stranger in Washington that his presence in the senate chamber, a day or two ago, created quite a sensation.
It has always been a debatable question as to how much of his time a public servant owes to public service.
There are a number of patriotic children around the country at the present time whose names are attached to the government pay roll.

BY A VOTE OF 52 TO 0, EX-SENATOR

Beveridge of Indiana and "Vine wreathed cottage" fame, finds himself outside the breasted works and deprived of a seat in the national convention.
The Indiana statesman is a progressive with insatiable tendencies. He insured once too often, and his constituency, which is loyal to Taft and his administration, refused to follow.

COLLIER'S GREAT "NATIONAL WEEKLY"

already has Roosevelt nominated and is now casting about to relieve the democrats of responsibility at Baltimore.
The paper has about decided that Woodrow Wilson is the safest man for the party to tie to. What could the country do without Collier's and the Chicago Tribune?

ORIGIN OF "MAUSOLEUM."

When Mausolus, king of Caria, died his widow, Artemisia, decided to erect over his body the most magnificent tomb that the world should ever see.
Sculptors and artists from every known land were put to work and no expense was spared, and for years the work was pursued, though it was not finished even at the death of his widow. It is from this incident that there arose the word "mausoleum," which means a stately tomb.

ON THE SPUR
OF THE MOMENT
By Roy K. Moulton

Things We Have Never Seen.

Things we have never seen.
I never saw a buck and wing.
I never saw a male quartet.
I never saw a juggler who Did no tricks with a billiard cue.
I never saw a woman who Couldn't make a man jump through.
I never saw a "white hope".
I never saw Jack Johnson's dope.
I never saw a "white man's hope".
I never saw a chorus maid.
I never saw a piece of glass.
That would stop slugging, on a bet.

Couldn't make a man jump through.

Things That Make Life Worth Living.

Having a next door neighbor who owns one of those cute little woolly dogs that snuggles up to your side.
Being on the calling list of twenty-five or thirty life insurance agents.
Having some kind old lady show a type of you when you were five years old and were curly.
Reading a flowery obituary of a man who had owed you $27 for an equal number of years.
Lending your safety razor to the man upstairs.
Going on your first automobile ride
of the year and blowing out a tire three miles from home.
Having several relatives from out of town drop in unexpectedly just as you are starting for a week-end excursion.

Our Swat-the-Fly Symposium.

J. W. Wright: "I am a good natured and long suffering man and I never use profanity, but there comes a time when patience ceases to be a virtue. Since my wife joined your confounded Swat-the-Fly club I have been black and blue from the apex of my head to my heels. She is running a race with the women

Of this neighborhood in the Swat-the-Fly crusade and she swats 'em wherever she finds 'em. Most of the flies that hang around our house seem to light on me. The other evening the members of the musical domestic family were holding a reunion or a convention upon my polished dome of thought while I was asleep in my easy chair. My wife came along with her swatter, which,
by the way, is a piece of scuffling, and broke up the convention. I was out for two hours and I have a know on my head that you could hang your hat on my head, get to stop using my wife to swat flies or I'll have the law on you, darned if I don't.
G. L. T. says: "Your club owes me $18. I swatted a fly that was rooding on the curved glass front of a china cabinet. That's all."

According to Uncle Abner.

I never heard of a feller that smoked a corn-cob pipe comittin' a murder, at least while he was smokin it.
Speakin' of the most useless thing in the world, I think it is one of them wooden hams that hangs in the meat market.
Hank Purdy says he always hates to go to a mattress, it breaks up the afternoon so.
It seems strange, but most of the fellows with curly hair are around selling corn cobs or starting some new religion.
The best way I know of to start a family is to begin pickling out paint for the house from one of those colored cards.

Personal.

Student—We don't know whether Baron wrote Shakespeare or Shakepeare wrote Baron, and we think it is a little late in the game to get fussed up about it.
P. D. R.—The best way to go to Florida in the summer time is to change your mind and stay at home.
D. R.—A good way to avoid heat prostration is to spend the summer in Alaska, or you can keep comfortably cool by making love to some old maid who likes to talk about Pluto and Homer.
Anxious—We can't tell you when it is going to rain on July 12, but go ahead and have your picnic and it probably will.

injured. A surgeon was immediately summoned to attend the leg, which bled profusely, and afterwards conveyed him to his boarding place nearby. The bicycle rider made his escape. Mr. Kimberly returned last night at 8:45. Dr. Keller was called this morning to attend the wound and thinks nothing serious will result. The escape from more severe, if not fatal injuries was miraculous.

PERSPIRATION MUST PRECEDE INSPIRATION

SAID THE REV. DR. BEATON IN ADDRESS TO GRADUATING TEACHERS.

EIGHTEEN IN THE CLASS

Diplomas Presented by County Superintendent O. D. Antladel—Musical Numbers on Program.

"Perspiration comes before inspiration," said the Rev. Dr. David Beaton, pastor of the Congregational church, who last night delivered the commencement address to the first class to be graduated from the Rock County Training school.

"The person who has never gone through the state of perspiration will never get to the stage of inspiration. The way to become inspired is to work hard."

"This was but one of the many songs of truth, expressed in the form of epigram by the Rev. Dr. Beaton. His address formed the principal part of the commencement program given at the Guild hall of the Christ Episcopal church. The program was opened with a piano duet by the Misses Ruth Hemmingsway and Emma Fossberg. The Rev. Dr. Beaton then delivered the invocation and after a violin and piano obligato by the Misses Corinne Crandall and Alice Lowery, began his address on the subject of 'Professional Inspiration.' His talk was of an informal character, enlivened by numerous anecdotes and accounts of personal experience.

"We are all here this evening," began the speaker, "because we are interested in the common school and the education of the American people. You who are native born Americans, however, hardly realize what advantages you have to secure an education. There is no country in Europe that offers to the children of the workingman the educational privileges that are given in this country. The English system, ancient and well seasoned as it is, is not one that belongs to all the people, but was founded primarily for the nobility and the rich."

Dr. Beaton reminded the graduates that they were a part of the greatest educational system in the world, and that the American public school system stands supreme and unique. Half a dozen or so over-privileged institutions might fall, but if the public school remained the nation would still survive and flourish.

"The product of the teacher is not that of the farm, of the factory, or the mine, or tangible and material things. Her product is the character and intellectual training of young people, the minds that will produce from the mine, the farm, and the factory."

"The speaker went on to demonstrate the value of education in the realm of trade, and commerce, and manufactures. Germany, he said, held the foremost place in commerce and manufactures because of her close attention to technical education. Great Britain failed to realize its value and fell from its once high place.

"Have an interest in your profession. Be proud of it. Let no one discount it. One who is ashamed of his trade or profession discloses the meanest and most deplorable qualities and should be ashamed of himself."

"You ought not only to be proud of your profession but remember that it is an interesting profession. Do your work because you like to do it, otherwise you will find yourself not doing it well. You do not call anything good unless you are happy in it. Every day's work ought to be a pleasure, but this will not be the case unless you take care of your physical health, for that is the foundation of intellectual health. Unless you are in good condition you are not the master of yourself or of your work."

"There is that which we call artistic pleasure. If you were to go into the studio of an artist you would find him enthusiastic over his work. His pleasure is the joy of creation, of self-expression. The teacher should be an artist. If she is not an artist she will be a drudge."

"No work is more interesting than teaching. The artist finds joy in his mastery of the colors and the brush and the sculptor in the marble or clay takes form under his hands, but children form under your hands. Did you ever realize what a developing mind is? A child begins its education at its mother's bosom. Education starts with consciousness. If I had my way I would get the child into some kind of a school before it is eighteen months old. This time is none too early for its education to begin."

"One of the things which you will look for are the sources of inspiration. I find them coming in succession like the steps of a ladder. First there is aspiration; the longing of the beginner for accomplishment. Then comes information; he learns what he must do and how, and if his ardor is not dampened he goes ahead and gets the facts. By and by there comes desperation, the determined struggle for mastery; perspiration, the result of toil, and with it inspiration. The person who has never gone through the stage of perspiration will never get to the stage of inspiration. The way to be inspired is to work hard."

"Young ladies, you have the misfortune to be in one of the two worst paid professions, the ministry and teaching. A well paid foreman in a shop gets better pay than the average high school principal. But there are compensations. The longer we teach and the longer we preach the more we learn ourselves. You have not learned anything unless you are able to teach it. You do not know what you can not express to another. It is not money that is the teacher's reward, but the culture that makes him the intellectual and spiritual companion of the poet and the thinker. Teaching (Continued on page 14.)

LECTURER DISCUSSED CIVIC IMPROVEMENT

Mrs. H. L. Bailey of Fargo, N. D., Spoke Yesterday Afternoon at Library Hall.

Various phases of Civic Improvement were discussed by Mrs. H. L. Bailey of Fargo, N. D., in a lecture on that subject yesterday afternoon at Library hall. Food inspection and sanitation laws for the free disposal of garbage were touched upon by the speaker, and she also discussed the question of playgrounds for children. She advocated the appointment of women on school boards. Discussing the work of visiting nurses, Mrs. Bailey told of the work done by the visiting nurses in Fargo, in remedying unhealthy conditions, and expressed a hope that Janesville would secure the services of a visiting nurse. To the women in the cities, she said, should be given the task of protecting the boys and girls, and especially to look after their amusements, the moving picture theatres and the dance halls. Conditions as they exist in Fargo were described and the efficiency of the plan used there of employing a nation to look after the dance hall was set forth. A large number of ladies attended the lecture.

"Battle-scarred heroes."

That phrase once brought unpleasant notoriety to a well-meaning man who failed to write what he meant and found through bitter experience what the omission of one letter may mean in a written word.

Could the same thing happen to you?

If so, why?

With the New Websterian 1912 Dictionary, Illustrated, at your elbow you can avoid such pitfalls as writing "angle" when you mean "angel".

Some person might take offense at being called "a perfect angel."

Think of what a vast difference there is between "stationary" and "stationary," "planning" and "planning," and the hundreds of other common errors which can be culled from a dictionary. Then clip six consecutive coupons from issues of The Gazette and prepare yourself to avoid mistakes and trouble.

This Dictionary is NOT published by the original publishers of Webster's Dictionary or their successors.

The intelligence of the public is but one of the principal elements which have made the distribution of the entire edition of the New Websterian 1912 Dictionary, Illustrated, seemingly a most simple task.

The other element is the sterling worth and beautiful appearance of the book itself. A restaurant cashier in one of the best patronized lunch-rooms in the city testified to this the other day when it was remarked that she had a New Websterian Dictionary lying beside her cash register.

"I was one of the first to get one," she said, "and I want to tell you that that book has started many persons clipping coupons. They are surprised as soon as they see it."

"I am coming around to get another one for my sister and I think I'll just let that one stay here for the present, because I surely wish The Gazette, all the luck in the world."

The describer of dictionaries thanked the young woman for those few kind words and went on his way, thinking how poor his powers of description were as compared to the convincing influence of exhibition of the dictionary itself.

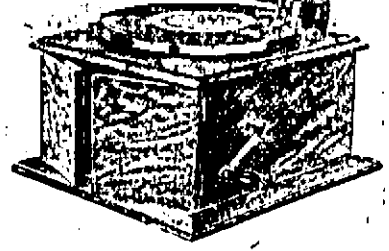

If you don't believe every word of it, come to the Dictionary Department, and be convinced. You may examine the books all you want without taking one.

We want you to start clipping coupons.

BIBLE PURGATORY EXISTS IN THIS LIFE.

"Saved So as by Fire" Is Not Literal Fire.

Pastor Russell Points Out That Dante's Picture of Purgatory Has Little Foundation in Bible—Thinks Many Have Been Under Kind of Hoodoo.

(PASTOR RUSSELL)

Kansas City, Mo., June 9.—Pastor Russell spoke twice here today. We quote his discourse from the text, "Saved so as by fire" (1 Cor. 13:12). "The Catholic thought of Purgatory has been opposed by Protestants upon the plea that Purgatory is not mentioned in the Bible. Let us admit that no such Purgatory as Dante pictured has any volume of foundation. Let us admit that not all that Catholics have claimed respecting Purgatory is either scriptural or logical.

But let us admit also that there are Scriptures of which our text is one which tell of a salvation by "fire" that evidently is not the salvation in which the "elect" of God will participate as "more than conquerors" through obediently following in the footsteps of Jesus their Redeemer. Indeed, our text is the principal one used by our Catholic brethren in support of their Purgatory.

Purgatory in Our Text.

But if the Pastor did not agree with the Protestants that there is no Purgatory taught in the Bible, neither did he agree with the Catholics respecting the kind of a Purgatory, for he proceeded to show that his text referred, not to a place of suffering, a purgation that existed in the Apostle's day, but that the Apostle was here speaking prophetically, of the end of this Gospel Age—foretelling a purgatorial condition at that time—not after men have died, nor in another world, but in the present life, and on this earth.

Indeed, said Pastor Russell, not only is the fire of this symbolical of trouble, but the same is true of nearly all that is said about fire in the Bible. There is a process of destruction, consumption. God's righteousness is spoken of as a "consuming fire" which burns against all sin and unrighteousness.

The context shows that the Apostle is discussing the Church in her earthly estate; that some of the "brothers" would not at the time appreciate the difference between "the gold, silver and precious stones" of the Divine promises and the cheaper materials—likening them to "wood, hay and stubble"—but that a day would come in the end of the Age when the Lord would specially test His people and when the tests would be severe and crucial like fire. In that day wood, hay and stubble would be consumed; but the gold, silver and precious stones—characteristics of the true faith and proper character-building would remain. We are not to understand him to mean that doctrines are all-important, but rather that they are reflected in the character-development of the individual who without them would be unable to stand in the testings that would surely come in the close of this Age.

The Apostle points out, however, that all who build their faith on Christ will eventually be saved, no matter how much error they may get into—even though their entire faith structure is wrong and will be consumed in the foretold fiery trial. All who build faith on Him, in full accord with the Divine Revelation, obediently, will become joint-heirs with the Redeemer in His Kingdom, while those who build their faith on Him, and maintain it even through error, will be eventually saved, though to a lower salvation. Theirs will be a purgatorial experience—purifying, sanctifying, fitting them for an inferior blessing on the spirit plane, serving before the throne instead of in the throne.

Living in Time Mentioned in Text. Apparently we are now living in the very time mentioned in our text. Many of God's people under the fiery trials of "higher criticism" and "science falsely so called" experienced a loss of all the faith they possessed, because they possessed only the wood, hay and stubble of human tradition, and not the gold, silver and precious jewels of the Divine Revelation.

Indeed, according to prophecy, we see that the time is fast approaching when God will have a further reckoning with the Gentiles and especially with the portion called Christendom. Richly favored, the responsibilities have been proportionate. The squaring of that account means "a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation."

But it will not be in another world nor in another life nor eternal in duration. Instead, God will merely permit the race, in selfishness of heart rejecting His counsel, to wreck present civilization to such an extent that, unless those days were shortened, there would no flesh be saved. But on account of the elect those days will be shortened, by the establishment of God's Kingdom, to restrain evil, to enlighten the world and to assist the willing and obedient back into the image and likeness of God.

Christ's Witness to John the Baptist. Matt. x:12-13. Unden Text—Among them that are born of women there is none greater than John, yet he that is but little in the kingdom of God is greater than he. Luke vi:23.

(1) Verse 2—What had John done to be in prison?

(2) Verse 3—What do you think had produced doubt in the mind of John concerning the Messiahship of Christ?

(3) What, if anything, was there in Christ's manner of life that would be liable to make John doubt?

(4) What are the causes which often produce doubt in the minds of good men on matters of which at other times they have been certain, as in the cases of Elijah and John?

(5) Verses 4-6—At what point did John need most to be strengthened?

(6) What did Jesus consider to be the supreme proof of his mission?

(7) What today are the proofs for the divinity of Christ's mission and gospel?

(8) Verses 7-8—What special scenes or demonstrations had attended John's preaching in the wilderness?

(9) In what respect was John unlike "a reed shaken with the wind"?

(10) What sort of clothing did John wear?

(11) What significance is there in the fact that Jesus and John were not alike in their manner of dress?

(12) Verses 9-10—In what respect was John more than a prophet? (This is one of the questions which may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(13) What is the evidence that Matt. xiii, from which Jesus quotes, refers to John and Jesus?

(14) As a matter of fact how did John prepare the way for Jesus?

(15) Verse 11—What, did Jesus mean by saying that there had not arisen one greater than John the Baptist, but that the least in the kingdom of heaven was greater than he?

(16) Verses 12-13—How did the great revival produced by John's preaching resemble soldiers storming a city?

(17) Why can no power in heaven or earth or hell keep a really determined man out of heaven?

(18) Verse 14—John no doubt had the spirit and power of Elijah and was planned by God to be the forerunner of Christ. What, if any, evidence is there that God plans every man for a specific work and gives him the power to do it?

(19) Verse 15—What qualities are necessary to understand spiritual truth?

truth?

(20) Why are spiritual hearing and sight—to hear God and see him—possible for all?

(21) Verses 10-12—Why does God direct or allow equally good men to adopt such different outward modes of life?

(22) What was the real reason which caused so many to reject the preaching of both John and Jesus? Lesson for Sunday, June 23, 1912. The Penitent Woman. Luke vi:20-26.

The Great Plains are the seat of an area of low atmospheric pressure whose influence extends over the entire continent. The weather is generally cloudy, with showers and thunderstorms, except in the East and

Southwest. The temperature is somewhat higher in front of this disturbance, especially in the Missouri valley. This wave of warmer weather will probably be felt in the Mississippi valley and upper Lake region to night. It is cooler in the Great Basin and on the north Pacific coast. In this vicinity the weather will be showery tonight and Saturday with higher temperatures in the morning. The wind will be southerly or southwesterly. Squalls are likely to accompany the thunderstorms.

WOMAN'S PAGE

MARY ELLEN'S WAY

She Points Out to Mr. Mary Ellen the Joys of European Travel.

MARY Ellen was sitting alone, looking thoughtfully at some steamship plans.

"Yes," she said to herself, "a stateroom in the centre of the boat feels the motion the least. I think No. 143 would be the best, if we could get it."

Then she sat lost in thought for a long time. That night after dinner, she remarked casually to Mr. Mary Ellen, "I can across some letters today, that you wrote me before we married. I hate to throw them away."

Mr. Mary Ellen looked pleased. "Though I suppose some people would say it was being terribly sentimental to keep them. And in one of them,—do you remember?—you were on a visit to New York, you said you enjoyed some museums there so much, the pictures and the other collections were so fine."

"I remember," said Mr. Mary Ellen, "There was one big picture—"

"Yes," went on Mary Ellen, "that was one reason I always liked you. You were business-like and practical and all that, but you also had a poetic streak in you. You liked fine things and artistic things. Not many men are that way."

"I am a bit artistic," said Mr. Mary Ellen. "I always had a knack at drawing."

"I couldn't help thinking," said Mary Ellen sadly, "how you would just revel in those wonderful picture galleries and museums abroad. Maybe if you hadn't married me, you could have gone to Europe."

"But I would rather have you than all Europe," expostulated Mr. Mary Ellen.

"But I hate to think," said Mary Ellen, "that I have kept you from all that. I know how a man of your taste would enjoy every minute in those wonderful places."

Then, her face serious, she took up her darning, while Mr. Mary Ellen let the paper lie unread on his lap, as he sat lost in thought.

"I guess everybody, sometime or other in his life, has an ambition to go to Europe," said Mr. Mary Ellen after awhile.

"Yes, I guess they do," said Mr. Mary Ellen. "But I hate to think you had to give up yours because of me."

"Maybe I haven't given it up," replied Mr. Mary Ellen, jocularly.

"Well, I hope you haven't," said Mary Ellen brightening. "My conscience would feel easier if you hadn't."

"Every fellow has lots of ambitions when he's young, that when he gets older, he finds are not practicable," said Mr. Mary Ellen soothingly.

"Yes, but really fine things, that are an inspiration are worth holding to," said Mary Ellen. "Why, a visit to the National Gallery and the Louvre and the old castles along the Rhine, would give you such a bigger outlook on life, you would be worth twice what you are now in business, and that's saying a lot. For everybody says you are the most alert and progressive man in the office. But it's a man like you that a trip abroad benefits. You're the kind that sees things."

"And they say," said Mr. Mary Ellen reflectively, "that Piccadilly and the Boulevards and Unter den Linden are just full of ideas for a man with his eyes open."

He sat quiet for a few minutes, and then took out a pencil and began figuring on the margin of the newspaper.

"A trip to Europe isn't so expensive," he said.

"And you don't go abroad to eat. You can get all the good things you want to eat at home."

"Right you are, little woman. That's a sensible way to look at it. You can cut out a lot of expense, if you don't want to splurge. Suppose you look up some steamship sailings and things of that sort. I think we can make it."

"All right, dear," said Mary Ellen. Then she leaned over to pick up her darning cotton, and smiled, a broad, beaming smile that just had to get out of her system, at the carpet.

Barbara Boyer

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Wooley

always wants to know.

"Why is it that you often hear a widow repeat her husband's last words, embodying the sentiment that she has been a 'good and faithful wife,' but you never hear a widower repeating any farewell words from his late spouse to the same effect? And why is it though you so often hear almost any wife boasting that her husband praises her as a 'good and faithful wife,' you seldom—think never—hear of a husband boasting that his wife tells him that he is a 'good and faithful husband'?"

"I'd like to know the answer," said the woman who always wanted to know.

"The most difficult thing that comes within my experience," said a woman whose profession brings her in contact with the feminine public, "is the increasing number of women who are seeking to add to the family income by some work they can accomplish at home."

"There are so many women who are trying to earn a little money and still perform all duties to home and husband and children. They come to me for advice and help, and sometimes I am able to give them ideas or start them along some practical line."

"So many of them want to earn the extra money without letting their neighbors and friends know—they feel it is sort of disgraceful. Some of them think they can get clerical work to do at home, or some kind of art work, or something perfectly ladylike and which can be kept a secret from everybody outside of home."

"I have to discourage all such ideas. For one thing, there is no such thing as clerical work to be done at home. For another thing, it's publicity that brings returns when one wants to sell one's services. For still another thing, one should never be ashamed of honest work, whether it's trying doughnuts or painting holiday cards or doing other folk's laundry."

"I always tell those who come to me to think what they can do best. If it's making babies' bills, then go in and corner the bib market. Everybody will respect the woman who can and will make the best babies' bills in town."

"When a woman feels that she must add to the family income she must put all false pride in her pocket."

"The pitiful part is that so many women feel that need now. And it is not always because the husband is stingy; rather that the husband's earnings are insufficient under the present conditions."

The KITCHEN CABINET

IT ISN'T raining rain to me, it's raining daffodils; In every flower I see Wild flowers on the hills. The clouds of gray on the day And everywhere the town; It isn't raining rain to me It's raining roses down.

—R. H. Loveman.

A FEW UNUSUAL DISHES.

For those who are fond of Devonshire cream, which may be whipped and served on borries or used as pudding sauce, the characteristic flavor is enjoyed. Scald milk and allow the cream to stand thirty-six hours; skim and use either plain or whipped.

Madison Salad.—Cut up four cucumbers into uniform cubes, add a small onion, also cut fine; two tablespoons of chopped parsley, and pour over this a French dressing. Serve in tomato cups.

Orange Fluffs.—For a light breakfast for five o'clock tea or for a luncheon duty, mix a baking powder biscuit dough, roll it out in small circles; dip cubes of sugar in orange juice and plunge into the center of each. Add a brushing of melted butter and bake. Serve piping hot.

Baked Potatoes, Spanish Style.—Bake six medium sized potatoes, cut open lengthwise and remove the contents. Mash the potatoes with grated onion, butter and salt and a little cream or milk. Replace in the shell, put a slice of sweet red pepper on the top of each and brown in the oven.

Strawberry Filling for Cake.—Beat a cup of cream until stiff, add a third of a cup of powdered sugar and a pinch of salt. Fold carefully into the beaten white of an egg and add a half cup of mashed strawberries.

Japanese Salad.—Remove ripe bananas from their skins, cut the fruit in cubes and mix with green peas and French dressing. Arrange the salad in the shells, place on lettuce leaves and garnish with slices of banana overlapping.

APPENDICITIS.

The fact that one can live apparently as well without the vermiform appendix does not prove that it is useless. One can live very well with one lung or one kidney, yet it is better to have two. Appendicitis is entirely preventable and it is not always necessary to have an operation when the appendix becomes inflamed. Insufficient mastication of fresh white bread and rich pastries and cakes in conjunction with animal foods, leading to putrefaction, with congestion of the intestine, is the essential cause and is obviously avoidable in all cases. Systematic exercise maintaining free action of the bowels tends to prevent the disease. There is no doubt that there is a germ peculiar to appendicitis, as has been mooted, but that the germ will attack any one who maintains proper conditions of nutrition is, obviously absurd—which is not saying that germs should be entirely ignored.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

BOSTON'S FIRST SETTLER.

By A. W. MACY.

William Blackstone was Boston's first settler. He was a peculiar character, preferring solitude to society, and differing from the majority in his theological views. He came over from England about 1633. It is said, and built a little house on the peninsula. Evidently he lived there alone for several years, but in 1636 he was joined by other settlers. He did not relish the idea of being surrounded by Puritan neighbors, however, and is said to have told them that "he left England because of his dislike of the lord-bishops, and now he did not like the lord-brethren." So in 1634 he sold out and removed to a more secluded spot. He died in 1675, leaving some property, including a library that was quite large and valuable for those days. This library was destroyed by the Indians in King Philip's war. It included, according to an inventory taken at his death, "ten paper books." These are supposed to have been manuscripts which might have thrown much light on early colonial history.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHEN SPEECH IS GOLDEN.

THERE is an old-fashioned rule of courtesy that it is not good manners to comment, even very favorably, upon the clothing, household furnishings and other possessions of one's acquaintances, unless the intimacy is extremely close. Now, we certainly suffer from disregarding some of the old-fashioned rulings, but it seems to me that this is one which is growing more and more common to honor it in that way.

A brand new acquaintance was calling on me the other day. We talked of the weather and kindred topics suitable for brand new acquaintances. Had she obeyed the old-time ruling in regard to personal comment, we should probably have gotten no closer to each other. But fortunately she disobeyed. I had noticed that she was eyeing a quaint old-fashioned secretary, which is the pride of my heart, and finally she burst into vocal admiration. From this pleasant comment we promptly proceeded to a general discussion of antique furniture, of which we are both ardent admirers, and instead of parting more acquaintances, we laid the foundations of a pleasant friendship upon our mutual ardor for things colonial.

I believe that this rule of silence was supposed to be especially strict in regard to commenting upon any food set before one, and, of course, to speak of such article of food and concentrate the attention upon the particular dish; to tell the hostess when she has hit the very bull's eye of one's preference in the choice of her salad or dessert; to appreciate a bit of good cooking; even to give the sincerest form of flattery by asking for recipes—surely this is kindness to one's hostess. And what is real courtesy, after all, but kindness crystallized into form?

On going to pay her first visit to a newly married friend, an older woman was met at the door by the new husband whom she had seen but once or twice before, with a pleasant greeting and then the frankly admiring comment: "And what a pretty hat!" She is a woman of thorough breeding, and instead of being offended, she received the greeting in the spirit in which it was intended and answered promptly: "And what a nice young man to tell me so."

This is the spirit of the day, and, to my mind, it is a very pleasant spirit. To be sure, such comment may be carried to excess, or it may be made without the sincerity behind it that stamps a compliment as valuable, or it may be uttered in a manner that is too abrupt or familiar to be pleasing.

Avoid these excesses and you may speak out your compliments on almost any subject, and not be, to the least, ill bred.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Do you believe in long engagements? I have been engaged to a man for seven years and still he says nothing definite about getting married. Do you think it is worth my while to keep on being engaged to him unless I know we are to be married pretty soon.

Unless there is some vitally good reason for it, no man should expect a girl to wait seven years for him, and he certainly is not much of a man unless he can say something definite about their coming marriage. A girl's marriage ability is very apt to decrease as she grows older, but a man can always marry, no matter how old he becomes, as long as he keeps up a reasonable good appearance. Therefore it is extremely unjust to any girl to ask her to be a party to a long engagement. Of course there are sometimes cases where a long engagement is justifiable. A man may be the entire support of a widowed mother and younger brothers and sisters. Until he gets his younger relatives on their feet so they can help themselves, he may be unable to support a wife. In such a case, if the girl is sure that he is the one and only man in the world for her, she will feel it a privilege to wait for a lightening of his duties. It is usually the man's selfishness, however, which makes him stretch out an engagement indefinitely into the years, and a girl will do well to think several times before permitting it. Talk the matter over with your friends, and if he shows no disposition to ask you to set a definite date for marrying, tell him you think it better for you both to be free until he knows what he wants to do.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a girl here that I am very, very fond of. I have asked her to be my wife but she says she believes every girl has the right to a career and she is determined to become an actress. To tell you the truth, Mrs. Thompson, I don't believe she has any stage talent. She is just a dear, lovable girl cut out to be a home-body. But a friend of hers left home and went to New York and got into some cheap show, and now my girl is just crazy to "shine" before the public. Please advise me, Mrs. Thompson, I want to shield my dear girl from the pitfalls of the stage, and I can give her a comfortable home, HARRY.

Almost every girl goes through a period of being stage-struck. Usually they outgrow it; it is difficult to manage such a case. Sometimes the only cure is to let the girl try it, and if she is made of the right stuff she will soon grow weary and disgusted with the life she would have to lead, and long for the clean, honest home atmosphere and the real love of a good, moral man. How would it be to take the young lady to a large city and to the rounds of the theatrical booking offices? An experience of that kind may be the best sort of cure, because she will discover her limitations. If only these girls who despise home life, could know what older women know, who have given up homes for "careers," they would thank God for the chance to be sheltered and loved in a little nest of their own.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

by Henrietta D. Grauel

If one markets carefully and studies the needs and tastes of her family and prepares and serves the food nicely, there will not be sufficient left over to count greatly from an economical standpoint, for food that is to be reheated requires eggs, cream and other additions that count up in the final reckoning to higher figures than fresh food; but there is nothing that comes upon our tables that is more enjoyed than the made-over dishes. An article cooler and by this I do not mean the professional, but the woman who takes pains to have her dishes attractively garnished and hot and tasty, will tell you that as much depends on the appearance of the reheated food as on its mere taste. Garnishing is a fine art, and nothing else so quickly shows a knowledge of cookery as its proper application, especially on made dishes, or, as the elegant French call them, "rechauffes."

One of the particular things to remember about cold cooked food is that each kind should be placed on a separate plate and kept by itself until used. Every bit of soup and gravy should be saved, for often a few spoonfuls will give a new and surprising flavor to some little dish.

Cold fish is perhaps one of the loveliest that offend no palates. It may be used in salads or creamed and served in potato shells, or made into cakes or croquettes. For the last any kind of cold fish may be used. Remove the skin and bones and flake the fish very fine. To each cup of fish add a cup of potato, and mix thoroughly together with an egg, well beaten, and seasonings. If sauce was served with the fish and some of it left, use it in the place of the egg to bind the cakes. Shape nicely and lay on a shallow pan, with a bit of butter on each cake, place in the oven, and in a few minutes they will be as bright as new and as tasty and dainty as a dish need be. If there is a little more fish and less potato, or more potato and less fish, it will not make any great difference.

Boiled meat is another leftover that is superior to many fresh dishes, and here, too, is the seasoning of the utmost importance. If there is only a little left, combine it with a few slices of cold ham and make it into "gold bricks." A cupful of cold boiled beef and ham, or veal and ham, or any meat that is at hand, chopped fine and mixed with a teaspoon of mustard, a teaspoon of parley and one tablespoon of cream. Slice stale, not hard, bread in half-inch thick slices and spread with the mixture. Press a slice of bread on each meat-covered slice, cut into strips or squares and dip into a batter of egg and milk and fry brown in butter. This is a variation of the well-known "Spanish toast."

In every basket of potatoes there are sure to be some very small ones that the housekeeper declares are made into "pyramids," they are so pretty a dish that they repay the slight trouble it takes to prepare them.

PIZZARRO
By Howard L. Rann.

THIRTEEN hundred and seventy-one years ago this day Francisco Pizarro, conqueror of Peru, breathed his last with considerable abruptness as the result of being assassinated in the regular vain by some people with whom he was not on good terms.

Pizarro was a discoverer by profession, having learned the trade of Balboa, who established quite a reputation by annexing the Pacific ocean before anybody knew where it was, but as Columbus and Cortez had discovered all of the known world which had not been told out in town lots he decided to conquer Peru. Pizarro was one of the hardest men to do business with that ever came to this country. He had a very cruel temper, which followed him around for a place to place, and he never allowed out of permitted a fleeting smile to locate on his title-page until after he had strangled somebody with whom he was not on rapport. Pizarro did not consider Peru with a shudder, but found it necessary to kill a large number of people who had never said an unkind word about any member of his family. The ruling sovereign of Peru at this time was a pronounced brute named Inca, who also carried the keys to the royal mint in his hip pocket. This gentleman took a violent dislike to Pizarro because he could not read or write and kept talking about the demonization of silver. Pizarro gave a stag dinner at his house one day and invited the Inca and his staff to sit in. Then after dinner, while his guests were idly turning the pages of the photograph album, Pizarro had everybody shot down but the Inca, whom he took prisoner. Pizarro treated the Inca with great leniency. He gave him his choice between being strangled to death in front of the county jail or being set on fire and consumed, together with all of his contents. After reading up on the matter a little and conferring with relatives who had witnessed one or two of Pizarro's laceratory configurations, the Inca chose the former route as being the more direct, and soon after said good-bye to this world in a voice choked with emotion and a homp rope. Pizarro then had himself elected governor on a reform ticket and tapped the Peruvian treasury with so much animation that the inhabitants revolted and announced that they were about to restore him from occupation. Pizarro, however, made some witty remark about the Peruvian bark being worse than his bite and cremated a few more natives. But his doom was at hand. At noon of June 26, 1541, being still wrapped in slumber and a pair of languid Peruvian pajamas, he was set upon by sixteen vindictive inhabitants, who took turns in opening cracks in his physique. Pizarro's death did not cause anybody to go into mourning, and Peru has been trying to forget him ever since.

This One-Man Hay Loader

Saves labor and hire. The only Hay Loader with which one man can do the work of two and do it better

A wonderful hay rake and loader combined, that takes hay from swath and delivers it on wagon at any desired height without use of side delivery rake or appliance of any other kind.

With other loaders it takes a minimum of 3,500 strokes of the rakes per mile to do what the Rock Island does in 1,700 strokes. Investigation will show the reason!

This is why the Rock Island One-Man Hay Loader, LASTS LONGER—PULLS EASIER—DOES BETTER WORK

Rock Island

Time-Tried, Proven

The Rock Island is built for service anywhere.

It rakes and loads hay on a side hill as well as going up or down or on a level. Handles light or heavy hay as well as clover, millet, blue joint and wild or prairie hay.

Ask any man who ever used one. Over 100,000 farmers use the Rock Island. They all say there never was a loader that would do the work as well and as easy. You will say the same if you use a Rock Island.

Let us show you this loader first time you come to town.

FORTY-FOUR SENIORS RECEIVED DIPLOMAS

GRADUATION EXERCISES FOR CLASS OF 1912 CLOSED WITH FINE PROGRAM LAST EVENING.

"OUT OF THE HARBOR"

Local High School Again Sends Its Quota of Eager Young People to Seek Their Fortunes in Busy World.

Forty-four young people, members of the class of 1912 of the Janesville high school, were presented with diplomas by Dr. S. B. Duckmator, for the board of education, at the close of the graduation night program at the high school auditorium last evening, and forty-four crafts left the protecting harbor of high school supervision and launched into the sea of the busy world, there to test their strength and earn their reward.

In giving the valedictory address just before the presentation of the diplomas, Miss Florence Davis, authoring closely to the class motto, "Out of the Harbor into the Sea," spoke in a beautiful metaphor and emphasized the similarity in the embarking of the ship on a maiden voyage to the members of the graduating class launching on their journey through life after four years of preparation spent in the high school harbor. These years of preparation have been planned ones, but on the eve of departure from the school walls comes a sense of sadness and responsibility, coupled also with hope and eagerness inspired by high ideals and noble purposes.

On the sea of life will come the supreme tests; there will be determined whose craft was most carefully constructed to weather the storms of the world's adversity. Some will reach the goal of their cherished ambition, while others, through the necessity of a sad fate, will be wrecked or shattered on dangerous shoals or threatening reefs. Miss Davis' address expressed in beautiful language these serious thoughts of farewell to the beloved school and encouragement to the members of the class as they embarked together. Her delivery was clear and forceful and her address was heartily applauded.

Dr. Duckmator, in presenting the diplomas, spoke briefly on the meaning of these parchments, given after four years of study. They indicated that the recipients had been industrious, he said; that they had performed their tasks and were deserving of a reward. They did not indicate that their education was complete, however, for whether they went on to higher institutions of learning or went out into the world to gain their experience at once, they would find many new problems and much that was new and unexplored. In their high school course it was enough if they had in some degree developed a noble character and had learned their lessons, teaching them to live a life of usefulness and in a spirit of fraternal kindness and thoughtfulness. Diplomas were given to the following students:

Doris B. Amerpohl, Frank Austin, Millie Rose Brinker, Allison Loyelle Burdick, Katharine Postwick Carlo, Florence Eunice Crissey, Robert J. Cunningham, Elsie Belle Davis, Ethel M. Davis, Florence L. Davis, Marie Josephine Donahue, Margaret Doty, Mary Fisher, Frank F. Fluherty, Leo James Ford, Thomas L. Foulkes, Lewis French, Sarah Alice Garbutt, Ruth Marie Gleason, Joanna Hayes, Florence J. Higoboom, Ruth Humphrey, Marion Jenkins, Catherine Hernandez Jones, John Rollins Kelly, Donald Hurch Korat, James L. Laughlin, Mable C. Madden, Glenn Roy McArthur, Agnes Marguerite McKay, Stanley Metcalf, Marie March, Murdoch Grace Estelle Murphy, Hazel Josephine Rice, Flora B. Robinson, Marie Josephine Roitorty, John Simpson, Verna Ruth Spencer, Frank B. Sutherland, Leah Ruth Votta, Leta Lucille Wilcox, Leah Wilkinson, Margaret L. Wray, George T. Yahn.

Last evening's program was an complete and well presented as those given on the two evenings previous. It included a number of good orations, several delightful musical numbers, and the address of presentation of the class token.

Following the opening prayer by the Rev. J. W. Laughlin, the opening oration was delivered by Lewis French on the subject, "The Curse of War." That the fruits of peace far outnumbered and outbalanced the results of war and that the welfare of humanity demanded a freedom from bloody conflict, was the thought expressed in an eloquent and stirring address.

A musical interpretation of Schubert's "The Trout," by Miss Grace Estelle Murphy was given with expression and artistic touch which drew forth a storm of applause.

"The Price of Progress" was the subject of the oration given by John Simpson. Human life and the greatest achievements of the ages have been sacrificed to attain our present degree of civilization. Progress has ever been secured with a costly payment, but mankind has profited by mistakes and advances was sure and certain, was the message brought by the speaker in a forceful and direct style.

Thomas Foulkes spoke on the subject, "The Evolution of Woman Suffrage," and reviewed in brief the fight for civic rights since Magna Charta to the present when as the last step woman sought the ballot which had so long been withheld.

Miss Mable Madden recited a German poem, "Das Schicksal am Meer," by Heinrich Uhland, one of the most popular of German lyric poets. After a brief review of the poet's life and his works she read an English translation of this beautiful poem, and then gave the original in German. Her pronunciation of the German was clear and correct and indicated a familiarity with the language.

"International Peace" was the subject of an oration by Briton Wilkinson. He reviewed some of the peace movements of recent years the foremost of which have been The Hague arbitration meetings. It was the sentiment of the address that through united international effort the horrors

DINNER STORIES

During a recent visit of a well-known circus to an Ohio town there appeared in the show a countryman of a decidedly inquisitive turn. He made the round of the freaks, to each of which he put many questions. Finally he came up to the living skeleton, in whom he seemed especially interested.

"Did you ever have the dropsy?" he asked the man of skin and bones. "Well, hardly," said the freak. "Why do you ask me such a silly question?"

"I just thought that if you ever had been troubled with the dropsy," explained the rural one, "that you was of unnecessary warfare might be abolished.

George Yahn's oration on "The Problem of Tomorrow" was one of the strong numbers of the evening. Thought and careful study was shown in the composition which was delivered with masterful eloquence. The matter of child welfare and protection from sweatshop and crowded tenement evils was viewed by the speaker as one of the greatest problems demanding immediate attention in order to insure the nation a strong and sturdy citizenship.

Miss Marie Murdoch gave the presentation speech of the class token which failed to arrive for the exercises last night. The gift to the class will be a bust of Charles Dickens, whose century the graduating class has observed in so fitting a manner. Miss Murdoch spoke a brief tribute to the great English author and expressed the hope that future high school classes would be inspired by the great humanity of his writings.

Musical numbers given last night included several selections by the orchestra: "Heldberg," Luders, opening number; and "Moonlight," Morel, preceding the valedictory address. The Husk Lyceum Glee club sang "Proudly the Eagle," in a pleasing manner, and the Girls' Glee club rendered two selections, "The Delight of Spring," and "The Torrent," with melody and expression.

The closing number of the program was the class song, the words of which were written by Miss Margaret Wray and adapted to a number of the popular tunes. The entire song was cleverly written and was sung with volume and appreciation by the entire class.

shook the best cured man I ever saw." Seeing that his repeated requests to look pleasant only caused his subject to scowl more fiercely, the photographer ceased to look pleasant himself. "If you can't cheer up," he said, "we might as well call this sitting off. You seem an amiable sort of chap. Why can't you look pleasant when I tell you to?" "Because I don't want to," said the man before the camera. "My wife is going to send these pictures to some relatives of hers whom I have never seen, along with an invitation to visit us soon, and it is my intention to look like a brigand, so they won't come."

"How will you have your eggs?" asked the girl behind the lunch counter.

"With an brief an interval of time," answered the absent-minded between the deposition of the oval professor, "as possible intervening sphere in the midificated receptacle by the female representative of the common barnyard variety of domestic fowl and the subsequent appearance of the same in the marts of commerce where congregate the—"

"All right," interrupted the girl, "I think I understand. Scramble three!"

A Permanent Cure For Chronic Constipation

Although these may dispute it who have not tried it, yet thousands of others, who speak from personal experience, assert that there is a permanent cure for chronic constipation. Some testify they were cured for as little as fifty cents, years ago, and that the trouble never came back to them, while others admit they took several bottles before a steady cure was brought about.

The remedy referred to is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It has been on the market for over a quarter of a century and has been popularized on its merits, by one person telling another. The fact that its strongest supporters are women and elderly people—the ones most persistently constipated—makes it certain that the claims regarding it as a permanent cure for constipation have not been exaggerated.

It is not violent like cathartic pills without griping and without shock to the system. It contains tonic properties that strengthen the stomach and bowels, and is again solely rolled on. Among the legions who testify to these facts are Mr. Herbert Timm, 404 Idaho St., Oshkosh, Wis., and Caroline Mayard, Chaffield, Minn., and they always have a bottle of it in the house, for it is a reliable laxative for all the family from infancy to old age.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist, at fifty cents or one dollar a large bottle (family size) can have a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 405 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a post-card will do.

The twenty-fifth and the 26th of September were agreed upon.

Cold Weather and Good Crops.—The Johnstown letter dropped into our sanctum this morning for a brief chat. He looked as blue as an indigo bottle, and in explanation of his appearance said he had left home without his overcoat and mittens and was nearly congealed. Fortunately he had a buffalo robe which he wrapped about him and thus managed to weather the prairie journey. After warming up he was able to converse with his usual effluence. He reports farming interests east of the city in a highly prosperous condition. Crops are all kinds excepting corn and much of that, look magnificently. Large quantities of old wheat are going to market daily, and bringing good prices. He thinks the late soaking rain was just enough to make up for just drouth. Next time he starts for a ten mile ride across Rock Prairie it is probable that he will take his winter clothes.

Graduates.—The following pupils graduates from Milton college at the close of the present term, Wednesday the 26: In the teacher's course Kate M. Haddock, 1, Eleanor Clark, Ada B. Branch Office for Gazette at Baker & Son.
For the convenience of its patrons and the public generally, The Gazette has opened a branch office with the J. T. Baker & Son drug store, corner West Milwaukee and Franklin streets.

Copy for classified advertisements, orders for papers, subscriptions and matters of this nature, as well as items of news may be left at the Baker drug store, and will receive the same prompt attention as if they were sent direct to the office. Either telephone line number 10 will reach the Baker drug store if it is desired to call them in connection with The Gazette's business.

Fruitful Jersey.
A contributor assures us that the following is a faithful and accurate report of an entirely sober speech recently heard in a certain pleasant and famous city of New Jersey. "Hey, there, hey! Take this basket of apples up to Mr. Pease, corner of Peach and Plum streets. And be quick about it, too!"—Harper's Weekly.

One Little Sin.
It is astonishing how soon the whole conscience begins to unravel if a single stitch drops; one little sin indulged makes a hole you could put your head through.—Charles Buxton.

PUBLIC IS ASKED TO AID IN THE MATTER

Persons Answering Fraudulent Advertisements Asked to Notify Gazette.

The Gazette is desirous of keeping out of its columns fraudulent advertising and asks the assistance of its patrons to that end.

There are any number of con-men in the country who make a living through a nicely worded advertisement, offering golden opportunities, and these unscrupulous people find fertile ground for work among the masses.

Many orders are received in the Gazette mail for advertising which are returned as objectionable and where there is a question as to the qualifications the advertisement is omitted. All newspapers have this experience.

But even with the utmost care there will be an occasional advertisement which will pass the scrutiny of the business department of the paper and find its way into the columns.

The Gazette will deem it a favor if you will report to the office any trouble which may have been experienced through the answering of such an advertisement.

Are your ways much better than those of your kind? The present day makes lots of folks mad. It seems most unduly and needlessly small; "Dear Sir," and "Yours Truly," and that's about all. No gossip is written, we've no time to waste; we

Correspondence smitten with microbes of haste. No news of the truly old or the pit; "Dear Sir," and "Yours Truly," and then comes the sign: flow wiser and better—thin-way-of your story! When he wrote a letter he used up a quire; he strung words together with fervor and zest, and told of the weather, the crops and the rest; Aunt Mary was havin' much grief with her hair; he told of the spavin upon the bay mare; the big spotted gamer got sick and went hence; old Tom Alexander had painted his fence. The news of the neighbors was all written there; their games and their labors, their joy and their care! The modern way better? Indeed! and indeed! The old-fashioned letter had something to read! I just got a billet from Jenkins de Smith; he'd no time to fill it some ideas with; his patience, unvarying, soon suffered a fall; "Dear Sir" and "Yours Truly"—and that's about all!

A GIRL OF TEALIMBERLOST

By
GENE STRATTON-PORTER

Copyright, 1909, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

Edith lay on the white sand and Henderson covered her face with her hat. Then he ran to the nearest booth and talked impatiently. Presently he was back, bringing a hot drink that was stimulating. Shortly the motor ran close to the beach and stopped. Henderson's servant brought a row-boat ashore and took them to the launch.

Hour after hour the boat ran up and down the shore. The moon arose and the night air grew very chilly. Henderson put on an overcoat and pulled more covers on Edith.

"You must take me home," she said at last. "The folks will be uneasy."

He was compelled to take her to the cottage with the battle still raging. He went back early the next morning, but already she had wandered out over the island. Instinctively Henderson felt that the shore would attract her. There was something in the tumult of rough little Elnora's waves that called to him. It was there he found her, crouching so close the water foam was dampening her skirts.

"May I stay?" he asked.

"I have been hoping you would come," she answered. "It's bad enough when you are here, but it is a little easier than bearing it alone."

"Of course you know there is something I have got to do, Harri! Will you go with me?"

"Of course."

"I might as well give up and get it over," she faltered.

That was the first time in her life that Edith Carr ever had proposed to give up anything she wanted.

"Help me, Harri!"

Henderson started around the beach, assisting her all he could. Finally he stopped.

"Edith, there is no sense in this! You are too tired to go. You know you can trust me. You wait in any of these lovely places and wait me. You will be safe, and I'll run. One word is all that is necessary."

"But I've got to say that word myself, Harri!"

"Then write it and let me carry it. The message is not going to prove who went to the office and sent it."

"That is quite true," she said dropping wearily, but she made no movement to take the pen and paper he offered.

"Hart, you write it," she said at last.

Henderson turned away his face. He gripped the pen, while his breath sucked between his dry teeth.

"Certainly!" he said when he could speak. "MacKinnon, Aug. 27. Philip Ammon, Lake Shore hospital, Chicago." He paused with suspended pen and glanced at Edith. Her white lips were working, but no sound came. "Miss Comstock is at Terrence O'More's, on Mackinac Island," prompted Henderson.

Edith nodded.

"Signed, Henderson," continued the big man.

Edith shook her head.

"Say, 'She is well and happy,' and sign, Edith Carr!" she panted.

"Not on your life!" snatched Henderson.

"For the love of mercy, Harri, don't make this any harder! It is the least I can do, and it takes every ounce of strength in me to do it."

"Will you wait for me here?" he asked.

She nodded, and, pulling his hat lower over his eyes, Henderson ran toward the shore. In less than an hour he was back. That evening they were walking down the straits before a stiff breeze and Henderson was busy with the letter when she said to him, "Harri, I want you to do something more for me. I want you to go away."

"Very well," he said quietly, but his face whitened visibly.

"You say that as if you had been expecting it."

"I have. I knew from the beginning that when this was over you would dislike me for having seen you suffer. Does it make any difference to you where I go?"

"I want you where you will be loved and good care taken of you."

"Thank you," said Henderson, smiling grimly. "Have you any idea where such a spot might be found?"

"It should be with your sister at Los Angeles. She always has seemed very fond of you."

"That is quite true," said Henderson, his eyes brightening a little. "I will go to her. When shall I start?"

"At once."

Henderson began to tack for the landing, but his hands shook until he scarcely could manage the boat. Edith Carr sat watching him indifferently, but her heart was throbbing painfully. "Why is there so much suffering in the world?" she kept whispering to herself. Inside her door Henderson took her by the shoulders almost roughly.

"Say, 'She is well and happy,' and sign, Edith Carr!"

"For how long is this, Edith, and how are you going to say goodbye to me?"

She raised tired, pain-filled eyes to his.

"I don't know for how long it is," she said. "If you ever come and I want you I won't wait for you to find it out yourself—I'll cable—Marconi—graph—anything."

Henderson studied her intently.

"In that case we will shake hands," he cried. "Goodbye, Edith. Don't forget that every hour I am thinking of you and hoping all good things will come to you soon."

CHAPTER XXVI.

Wherein Philip Finds Elnora.

"O H, I used my own violin," cried Elnora. "This one may be a thousand times more expensive and much older than mine, but it wasn't inspired and taught to sing by a man who knew how."

The guests in the O'More music room laughed appreciatively.

"Why don't you write your mother to come for a visit and bring yours?" suggested O'More.

"I did that three days ago," acknowledged Elnora. "I am half expecting her on the moon boat. That is one reason why this violin gets worse every minute. There is nothing at all the matter with me."

Elnora laid away the violin. "Come along, children," she said. "Let's race to the playhouse."

With the brood at her heels Elnora ran, and for an hour lively sounds stole from the remaining spot of forest on the island, which lay beside the O'More cottage. Then young Terry went to the playhouse to bring Alice home. He came moping back, dragging it by one leg and crying, "There's the company! Some one has come that mamma and papa are just tearing down the house over. He's sick. I saw through the window."

Before Elnora missed her, Alice, who had come to investigate, came flying across the windows and through the sunshine waving a paper. She thrust it into Elnora's hand.

"There is a man person—a stranger person!" she shouted. "But he knows you! He sent you that! You are to be the doctor! He said so! Oh, do hurry! I like him better!"

Elnora read Edith Carr's telegram to Philip Ammon and understood that he had been ill; that she had been located by Edith, who had notified him. In so doing she had acknowledged defeat.

At last Philip was free. Elnora went to him with a radiant face.

"Are you sure, at last, runaway?" asked Philip Ammon.

"Perfectly sure!" cried Elnora.

"Will you marry me now?"

"This instant! That is, any time after the noon boat comes in."

"Why such unnecessary delay?" demanded Ammon.

"It is almost September," explained Elnora. "I went for mother three days ago. We must wait until she comes, and we either have to send for Uncle Wesley and Aunt Margaret or go to them. I couldn't possibly be married properly without those dear people."

"We will send," decided Ammon. "The trip will be a treat for them. O'More, would you get off a message at once?"

"Every one met the noon boat. They went in the motor because Ammon was too weak to walk so far. As soon as people could be distinguished at all Elnora and Philip alighted an erect figure, with a head like a snowdrift. When the gangplank fell the first person across it was a lean, red-haired boy of eleven, carrying a violin in one hand and an enormous bouquet of yellow marigolds and purple asters in the other. He was bounding with broad strokes until he saw Ammon. Then his expression changed.

"Aw, say!" he exclaimed reproachfully. "I bet you Aunt Margaret is right. He is going to be your beau!"

Elnora stooped to kiss Billy as she caught her mother.

Mrs. Comstock shook out her skirts, straightened her hat and came forward to meet Philip, who took her into his arms and kissed her repeatedly. He passed her along to Freddie and the Angel, to whom her greetings were mingled with scolding and laughter over her wind-blown hair. Then the O'More children came crowding to meet Elnora's mother.

"Before you think of something more give me your left hand, please," said Philip to Elnora.

Elnora gave it gladly and the ring slipped on her finger. Then they went together into the forest to tell each other all about it and talk it over.

"Have you seen Edith?" asked Ammon.

"No," answered Elnora, "but she must be here, or she may have seen me when we went to Potoskey a few days ago. Her people have a cottage over on the bluff, but the Angel never told me until today. I didn't want to make that trip, but the folks were so anxious to entertain me and it was only a few days until I intended to let you know myself where I was."

"And I was going to wait just that long, and if I didn't hear then I was getting ready to turn over the country, I can scarcely realize yet that Edith sent me that telegram."

"No wonder! It's a difficult thing to believe. I can't express how I feel for her."

"Let us never again speak of it," said Ammon. "It is done. We will forget it."

"I scarcely think I shall," said Elnora. "It is the sort of thing I like to remember. How suffering must have changed her! I would give a great deal to bring her peace."

"Henderson came to see me at the hospital a few days ago. He's gone a pretty wild pace, but if he had been held from youth by the love of a good woman he might have lived differently. There are things about him one cannot help admiring."

"I think he loves her," said Elnora softly.

Edith Carr went to her room after her goodbye to Henderson, lay on her bed and tried to think why she was suffering as she was.

"It is all my selfishness, my unstrained temper, my pride in my looks, my ambition to be first," she said. "That is what has caused this trouble. No one really cares for me but Harri. I've sent him away, so there is no one—no one."

Edith pressed her fingers across her burning eyes and lay still.

"He is gone," she whispered at last. "He would go at once. He would not see me again. Oh, those dreadful days to come, alone! I can't bear it. Harri, Harri!" she cried aloud. "I want you! No one cares but you. No one understands but you. Oh, I want you!"

She sprang from her bed and felt her way to her desk.

"Get me some one at the Henderson cottage," she said to central and waited slyly.

After a time the sleepy voice of Mrs. Henderson answered.

TO PEOPLE INTERESTED IN COUNTRY SCHOOLS AND RURAL LIFE.

We are sending out this page in the Gazette as a souvenir of the first year of the Rock County Training School. It serves to call attention to what we expect to do in the future. This training school was established to prepare teachers for the rural districts and we purpose not to forget our special function or mission. There are probably a hundred young women at the present time in Rock county who should be in the school next fall preparing to teach in the country districts. We can handle only forty, however. It is our aim to graduate twenty to twenty-five each year, and in the course of a few years we shall thus be able to supply the country schools of Rock county with trained teachers. This is an end greatly to be desired. If our school does not benefit the country schools it is not realizing its chief purpose. In Manitowoc county the training school has been in existence twelve years and over 90 per cent of the rural teachers of that county are graduates of the school. Rock county can and will do likewise.

For the benefit of those who are making up their minds concerning our school and whether or not to attend, we propose ten questions, with answers following. Here they are:

First.—What standing has the school? It is doing precisely the same work as the other twenty-nine schools scattered through Wisconsin. Its teachers and its instruction have received the unqualified approval of Superintendent C. C. Cary.

Second.—Who should attend this school? All who earnestly desire to teach in the elementary school anywhere in Rock or other counties of Wisconsin.

Third.—How long will it take to complete the course? One or two years, according to previous preparation. See entrance requirements.

Fourth.—How much will it cost? It will cost Rock county girls less to attend our school than to go anywhere else. The cost will range from almost nothing for those who work for their board, up to $100 or more per year. Expense will be determined by your ability to pay.

Fifth.—Of what value is the diploma? It will constitute a license to teach in the country, village, state graded, or city graded schools, for many years by a process of renewal, determined by occasional attendance at a summer school. You can also teach outside of Rock county.

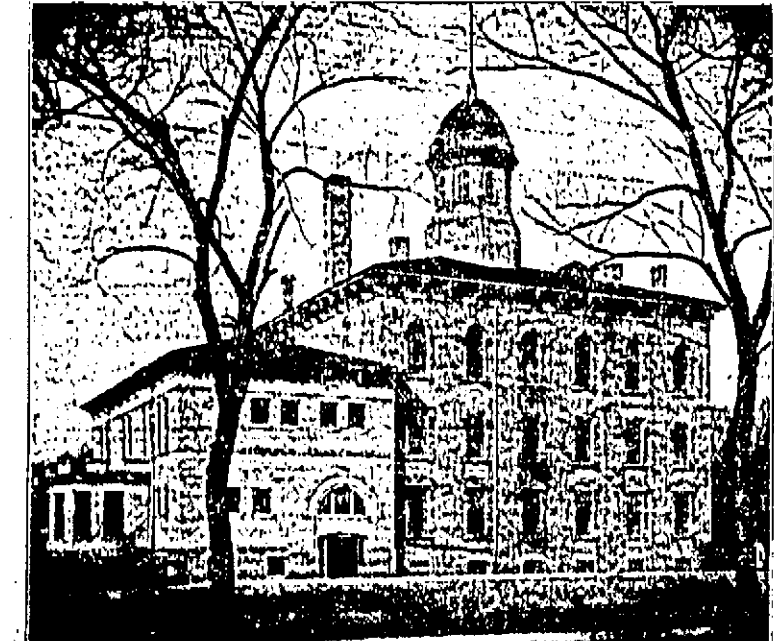

Sixth.—Will it pay me to put in my time getting this training? Yes, it will. There is no question about it. Your diploma will be the means of your always getting a good salary.

Further, the county superintendent and the principal will favor training school graduates above others in securing good positions, if they show themselves well qualified.

Seventh.—Is the work agreeable and pleasant? For one who really desires to teach there is no kind of work more satisfactory and enjoyable. Our young women have had a delightful year.

Eighth.—Is the school a permanent institution? It is now firmly established. The state of Wisconsin and Rock county are back of the school. It is here to stay. Wisconsin pays two-thirds of the expenses. Some day Rock county will put up a building for this school and for an agricultural school, all under one roof. First, however, country girls must respond and come to the school for the training.

Ninth.—When is the best time to begin? On Monday, August 26, 1912. If you are fifteen years of age and hold a common school diploma, or can pass the entrance examination.

A Symposium:

WHAT THE ROCK COUNTY TRAINING SCHOOL HAS DONE FOR ME.

By Several Students.

Last spring when I left the high school, I did not know whether I would continue my work there or go to the Green County Normal School. When I learned that there would be a Teacher's Training School in Janesville, I prepared to go there and am glad that I did so. The Training School in Janesville, I prepared to go there and am glad that I did so. The School has prepared me for the work of a country school teacher. I have taken up the work that will be of special help to me in the country schools. My observation work in the grades of the Jefferson school has helped me greatly, giving me many helpful points and suggestions. The practice work has been of great benefit to me. I have had actual experience in teaching, so I will now know better what to do the first day, the first week, and the first month of school.

JENNIE H. HAUGEN

By attending the Rock County Training School during the past year, I have learned up-to-date methods of teaching. I have also become informed as to the best text books to use in elementary teaching. The Rock County Training School has the latest and best equipments. Young women of Rock County who have graduated from the country schools should not miss the opportunity offered in this school.

DORA HAYLAND.

I have learned more in the one year that I have spent in the Training School than in all the other years which I have attended school. This year has taught me to think for myself and how to study. I have learned to be independent, and, if not successful at first, to try again. I also understood that the lesson assigned was to be mastered, and that no one was excused from recitation. Indefinite answers were not accepted, and studying had no place in the school. By observation I have learned that I would have to possess force in order to teach, and that if I was weak this must be overcome before beginning my practice work in the grades. In my practice work, I discovered that teaching can best be learned by actual experience. Much good means. Our literary society has taught me how to conduct a good business meeting. Our practice work in the grades has taught me some of the conditions that confront a young teacher. I have got more out of this year's work than out of any other year I have ever spent in school, and I feel confident that I am far better qualified for the teacher's work than I would have been otherwise.

RUTH HEMMINGWAY.

The training school has prepared me for the work of teaching as no other school, besides a normal school, could do. I received part of my education in the high school, but if I had not gone to the training school I would probably teach other pupils the way I was taught several years ago. I have received a direct help in managing a school. I have been taught how to overcome difficulties that are likely to arise. I will know how to begin my first day's work in teaching, and then how to proceed during the rest of the year. The training school has given me help in teaching classes by using the most approved methods. It has given me the power to get the thought from the printed page and to express my thoughts, or explain difficult points, which ever may be necessary. My power of reasoning has also been developed. It is needless to say that the practice teaching and observation work in the grades of the Jefferson school have been a great aid in the art of teaching. Any person that desires to be a teacher should surely spend a year or two in the training school.

RACHEL EHRLINGER.

By attending the Training School I am now better qualified for a rural teacher, having been trained in the most up-to-date methods. I received thorough instruction in the elementary branches, and I am better able to teach them.

During my studies in school management, psychology, methods, observation, and practice, I have learned how to conduct a recitation, how to hold attention, and how to stimulate the children to respond. I have also learned the art of questioning, an art of everyday use.

I think it would be very profitable for any young man or woman who is intending to teach in the country to take the course in the Training School, because they will then be better fitted for the work of a country school teacher. Trained teachers are in demand.

SADIE H. FINNANE.

The Training School is very profitable to one who wishes to take up the teacher's profession. The school takes up those subjects which a teacher must know well, before she can teach them to children. That which has been most helpful to me is the observation and practice work. I was given the opportunity of observing efficient teachers, who were doing good work. By taking charge of a definite class each day for several weeks, I realized what the requisites of a successful teacher are.

EMMA FOSBERG.

During this year which I have spent in the Rock County Training School, I have enjoyed the work very much. I have made good use of my time, and fully appreciate the fact that I have

THE FIRST YEAR OF THE ROCK COUNTY TEACHERS' TRAINING SCHOOL.

The first year of our county training school has been an extremely busy one. We have realized that the students are required to take music, drawing, spelling and writing as much as may be necessary. Recitation work will be done in a literary society. This will consist in part of book reviews. Two 30-40 minute periods are given each week to music and two such periods to drawing and construction work, both under the direction of Mrs. Hyde.

Comments on the Courses of Study.

The courses of study were approved by the state superintendents on April 12, and adopted by the Training School Board on April 15, 1911. All school was established for a purpose, and that the people of the county could justly expect good results from this school.

The board knew that it is of the greatest importance to have teachers well qualified for this special work, and really interested in it. Careful selection from a number of good applicants secured us teachers who have shown real merit in this very important field of instruction—the special preparation of teachers for the rural schools.

Advertising the school, fitting up the rooms properly, and the selection of such books, furniture and equipment as are needed, have been given careful attention, and everything provided has been found very helpful.

The summer session with 66 students (most of whom have taught in Rock County this year) and the regular terms with about 30 students, have kept the school running 40 out of 52 weeks this year. About 50 different students have been instructed for a part or for all of this period, about 85 of them from Rock county.

The board and instructors have had practical aims in all the preparation and teaching; thus making the work interesting and inspiring, but at the same time broad, thorough, and especially useful in every day life. The instructors have sought to develop the thinking powers of the students, and their ability to apply their knowledge to actual teaching.

We have greatly appreciated the helpful spirit of many people, and especially that of many members of the county board, and of Supt. Russell and the Jefferson school teachers who have aided so much in the practice teaching of our senior class.

Time is needed to perfect such a school, and to show its results. To judge it properly we must have its graduates in a large share of the rural schools of the county, and they must be there long enough to show their worth.

The first year has been very satisfactory. We have started on the right course. We expect to advance and to make the work of our county training school still better, and still more helpful to the boys and girls, Rock County's future citizens.

through experience under supervision. I also know now how I must start to teach the first day in my own school. I have also learned many useful things which country children should know.

ILENE SANDS.

The practical knowledge and professional training obtained, the personal contact with the teachers and the other members of the school, and the pleasure of the social functions, which we all have enjoyed together, have made this year a profitable and enjoyable one for me. This course certainly will prove valuable to us all. I think we will realize more fully the conditions and needs of the country school, and will do all in our power to improve the situation. The practice teaching which we have done here has come through my observing classes in the Jefferson school, and more good through the practice teaching in the same grades. Valuable information has been gained through hearing a number of people speak, and by visiting various places. PERSPIRATION MUST PRECEDE INSPIRATION

Is the highest form of service you can render to your country; higher than that of legislator, or executive; for to you is given the opportunity to mould the lives of its citizens.

Diplomas were presented to the eighteen graduates of the training school at the close of Dr. Benton's address, after a piano number by Mrs. Georgia C. Hyde, Superintendent Antisdell expressed himself appreciative of the opportunity to grant diplomas to the first class to be graduated from the Rock County Training school. He anticipated gratifying results from their work, because they had been especially fitted for it, and he hoped that they would take an especial pride in their work. As the first graduates, they would be closely watched and their accomplishments noted. The program was closed with a chorus by the graduating class.

The following is the list of those who received diplomas, having completed the required number of terms in the Training School.
